Principal Risks

The Fund will be primarily invested in a range of fixed income securities, including Treasury bills and bonds, repurchase agreements on government securities, quoted and unquoted debt instruments, and deposits in licensed financial institutions. Compared to the JB Vantage Short Term Gilt Fund, this Fund carries a relatively higher level of risk, as it includes exposure to corporate issuers that may present a degree of credit (default) risk. However, the Fund Manager will adopt a prudent investment approach, conducting thorough due diligence and credit assessments to minimize exposure to such risks.

Additionally, as this Fund includes fixed income instruments with maturities exceeding 367 days, these securities will be marked-to-market. As a result, the value of the Fund may be more sensitive to fluctuations in interest rates, which could lead to periodic changes in unit prices. The following details the key risks and our strategy on mitigating these risks.

Inflation Risk

This is the risk that inflation may outpace investment returns, resulting in a loss of purchasing power or negative real returns. However, this risk is partially offset by the tendency of short-term interest rates to adjust quickly in response to rising inflation, providing a natural buffer.

Market Risk

Market risk refers to the potential for investment losses resulting from broad movements in the financial markets, influenced by both global and domestic events. This may include factors such as political instability, fluctuations in interest rates, regulatory changes, or natural catastrophes. The market value of a security is ultimately shaped by the dynamics of supply and demand—prices generally decline when sellers outnumber buyers and rise when demand exceeds supply. Market risk is an unavoidable component of investing in most financial instruments and cannot be entirely mitigated through diversification.

Interest Rate Risk

The Fund's allocation to both short-term and long-term fixed income instruments makes it sensitive to changes in interest rates. A notable decrease in interest rates may reduce income generated from short-term holdings but can result in capital gains on long-term securities, thereby enhancing overall Fund performance. To manage this risk, the Fund's asset allocation strategy is guided by a forward-looking interest rate outlook, developed through in-depth market research and the investment team's capital markets expertise.

Credit Risk

This refers to the risk that a debt issuer may default on interest payments or fail to repay the principal amount. To mitigate this risk, the Fund invests exclusively in securities that have been evaluated by our own internal credit assessments. Furthermore, issuer concentration is actively managed through internal exposure limits and regulatory caps set by the SEC, helping to reduce the impact of any single issuer's default.

Liquidity Risk

This refers to the risk that the Fund may face difficulties in converting investments to cash quickly or may be forced to sell assets at a significant discount, potentially affecting overall performance. To manage this risk, a portion of the Fund's portfolio is maintained in highly liquid assets such as Treasury bills and bonds. In addition, the Fund's active duration management aligned with the interest rate cycle help enhance overall liquidity.

The Fund shall maintain liquidity levels as specified by the Commission in terms of CIS Code and Directives issued from time to time by the Commission.

Leverage Risk

Leverage involves using borrowed funds to invest in securities, which amplifies both the potential returns and the associated risks. Higher leverage increases the opportunity for greater profits but also heightens the possibility of significant losses. In the event the portfolio experiences losses, additional capital may be required to manage and offset the resulting risk.

Sovereign Risk

Sovereign risk is the possibility that a government may fail to meet its debt obligations, including the repayment of principal and interest on sovereign bonds. In the case of securities issued by the Government of Sri Lanka, repayment of interest and principal is assured only if the securities are held to maturity. Prior to maturity, the market value of these securities may vary based on market conditions.

Re-investment Risk

Re-investment risk arises when future interest payments or principal repayments cannot be reinvested at the same yield as the original investment. Investors seeking to reinvest proceeds in the debt market must do so at prevailing market rates, which may be lower—especially in a declining interest rate environment.

Additionally, fixed income securities may experience capital gains or losses when traded on the secondary market, depending on price movements. These fluctuations can affect both the income generated and the market value of the Fund. Consequently, reinvestment yields may vary due to changes in market pricing at the time of reinvestment.

Unit Prices can fluctuate in response to changes in market conditions.

Other Fees and Charges

Management fees, trustee and custodian fees, transaction costs, administrative costs and taxes are payable in a unit trust. The unit holder pays some of these expenses directly. Others are payable by the Fund, which reduces the value of the investments in the Fund.

Other fees and charges payable by the Fund	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Any expenses or disbursements of the custodian which are authorised by the trust deed of the scheme to be paid out of the assets of the scheme;• The cost of dealing with the assets of the scheme;• Interest on borrowings permitted under the scheme and charges incurred in effecting or varying the terms of such borrowings;• The costs and expenses incurred in obtaining a listing of the shares of the scheme on any licensed securities exchange;• The fees and expenses of the auditor of the scheme;• The costs incurred in respect of the distribution of income to investors;• The costs reasonably incurred in respect of the publication of prices of units and in respect of the publication and distribution of the Fund KIID or trust deed, annual and interim reports and accounts;• Any costs incurred in preparation or the modification of the trust deed of the scheme;• Any other costs, incidental to its operation that may be charged to the scheme;• Any change in annual charges of the Managing Company;• Any expenses or disbursements of the Trustee, which are authorized by the trust deed to be paid out of the assets of the scheme;• Fees payable to the Commission in respect of obtaining approval for a scheme;• Legal expenses incurred in safeguarding the assets of the scheme;• Any other fee approved by the Commission and specified in the trust deed.
